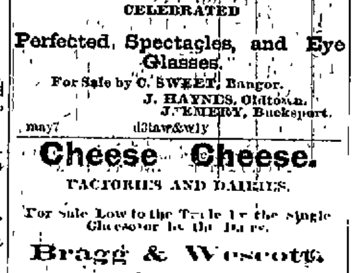
Money Cannot Buy It

For Sight is Priceless!



THE DIAMOND GLASSES,

Manufactured by J. E. SPENCER & CO., New York, which are now offered to the public, are pronounced by all the celebrated Opticians of the World to be the MOST PERFECT, Natural, Artificial help to the human eye ever known.

They are ground under their own supervision, from minute Crystal Pebbles, melted together, and derive their name, "Diamond," on account of their hardness and brilliancy.

The Scientific Principle on which they are constructed brings the core or centre of the lens directly in front of the eye, producing a clear and distinct vision, as in the natural healthy sight, and preventing all unpleasant sensations, such as glimmering and wavering of sight, dizziness, &c., peculiar to all others in use.

They are mounted in the finest manner, in frames of the best quality, of all materials used for that purpose. Their finish and durability cannot be surpassed.

CAUTION.—None genuine unless bearing their trade mark <> stamped on every frame.

LOWELL & SPENCER,

LAFAYETTE'S FACULTY OF REMEMBRANCE.—The Richmond (Va) Whig contains the following from a Danville correspondent:

"It was often remarked of General Lafayette, when he was on his tour through the United States, in 1824, that he possessed, in a very extraordinary degree, the faculty of recognizing at a glance his old companions in arms, whom he had not seen for more than fifty years. He could call by name as well the privates in the ranks as the highest officers of the line.

"The following incident was related to me in the year 1832, by the late Judge Brooks, of the Court of Appeals of this state, who had been a captain in the war of the revolution:

"While Lafayette was in Richmond, a guest of Virginia, an obscure individual living in Pittsylvania county, North Carolina, who was known in the revolutionary army as Sergeant Hood, who belonged to the company commanded by Captain Brooks, and who, on account of his singular daring and uniform good conduct, was a pet of his officers, visited the capital for the purpose of greeting his old commanding general.

"Judge Brooks said that on walking across the capitol square one morning he met an old man who inquired of him if he could direct him to the quarters of General Lafayette, adding that he had fought under him when he was a youth, and had come one hundred and fifty miles to see him. Before the Judge had time to respond the stranger said to him, 'Is not this Captain Brooks to whom I am talking?' On receiving an affirmative answer he said, 'You do not appear to recognize me. I am Sergeant Hood, who belonged to your company during the Revolutionary war.' The Judge told me that he was immediately filled with the most pleasant recollections of the sergeant's many deeds of valor performed under his own inspection, that he gave him a cordial grasp and went with him to Lafayette's room.

"On entering and before a word was spoken by any one else, the marquis, who was in a remote part of the room, eagerly approached the strange old man, and, exclaiming, 'Sergeant Hood,' fell on his neck and wept tears of joy. He recognized this humble private in an instant, and recounted some of his deeds of daring to the astonished company. That he should have recognized any of his brother officers after a separation of more than half a century, during which time they must have undergone the usual change wrought in one's appearance by old age, while his own eyes must have grown dim, was a matter of no little surprise, but that he should have hailed an humble private in the ranks by name excited the astonishment of all who were present. The judge remarked that it was one of the most agreeable and joyful reunions in which he ever participated."

Gen. Capron, Commissioner of Agriculture, urges in his annual report the establishment of a Bureau of Veterinary Surgery in the Agricultural Department. He says that the value of stock lost annually from disease is enormous, and threatens not only to decimate our animals, but to expose human family to disease from the consumption of unwholesome meats. Neglect of animals and their overcrowding in transportation are prolific sources of disease, and its spread is permitted by the ignorance of a majority of the present class of veterinarians. Another class of diseases arise from causes but obscurely known, if known at all, and the fatal maladies are as yet without any indicated effort of cure, rendering necessary the barbarous plan of stamping out, recommended and adopted in other countries, as well as our own, as the only means of saving the agriculturalist or stock raiser from total ruin.

One of the curiosities of the war is a whole newspaper in one square inch of paper. A London dispatch says:—

Last night I received from one of your correspondents in Paris the most extraordinary thing in the way of a newspaper that I have ever seen. Your correspondent had cut all the news columns of the Paris journals of November, had pasted them together, and then photographed them, reducing what filled seven columns of print to a space scarcely more than an inch and a half square. This he then forwarded by balloon mail; and although to the unassisted eye, its contents were undecipherable, by the aid of a very powerful magnifying glass and a strong light it could be read.

We shall get Canada by absorption sooner than by war or by any modification of the Butler programme. The Canadians are coming over in shoals. Last year 41,000 emigrated, and 600,000 in all have come out. There is much feeling in the Dominion in consequence, and England receives some hard raps.

The state of the mind of the western youth is illustrated by the following conversation: Father—"Who's the pitcher in the Red Stocking Ball Club?" Son—"Why, Brainard." Father—"In the White Stocking Club?" Son—"Pinkham." Father—"Who was the second President of the United States?" Son—"I don't remember."

JOHN H. LYNDE, - - PROPRIETOR.

FRIDAY, DEC. 2, 1870.

THE ORGANIZATION OF THE NEXT HOUSE.

The proposition that the Revenue Reformers shall unite with the Democracy to elect a Democratic Speaker of the next Congress, says the New York Standard, is the coolest suggestion that we have seen made in some time. The magnificent impudence of the plan almost commands our admiration, and the seriousness with which it is urged is one of the humorous incidents of the campaign. They who advocate it do not, of course dream that it can possibly be carried out, or that it will for a moment be seriously entertained. The Republican party is undoubtedly divided on the question of high or low tariff, but on purely political issues the discipline of the organization is as strong to-day as it ever was, and cannot be broken on such flimsy pretexts.

What would be gained by the combination? The Democratic party is not a unit on Free Trade any more than the Republican party is on Protection. A few votes would be gained on this side and that, but it would bring no solid advantage to either.— The effect of it would merely be disorganization and disruption, and for that the time has not yet come. The fact is, the tariff fight must be waged for years to come within the present party lines. It cannot be made a direct issue so long as there is a party in existence that has not the confidence of the country, and that it would be dangerous to intrust with power. The people are deeply interested in the amount of taxes they shall pay, but they are more deeply concerned in the preservation of what was gained by the suppression of the late rebellion. The return of the Democracy to power would be the loss of half the advantages of the war.— No one believes that that party would content itself with regulating questions merely of taxation and revenue. The repudiation of the national debt is considered just and proper and patriotic by their most prominent leaders, and nothing short of the repeal of the reconstruction laws and the various Constitutional amendments would satisfy the Southern wing of the party. So long as the nation feels that the Democratic party is animated by ideas of this character, that this is the only policy it has to offer, its success is impossible, and a combination with Democrats by Republicans for any purpose is utterly out of the question.

The Albany Evening Journal puts the following pertinent query to Secretary Cox:

Mr. Cox denies that he was about to issue a patent to the New Idria Company. Will Mr. Cox be good enough then to explain why he so vehemently resented the President's order in August not to issue a patent to either party, and why, denouncing McGarrahan's claim, he insisted that the case should be immediately proceeded with? Condemning McGarrahan's claim, and now protesting that he did not intend to issue a patent to the New Idria Company, he represents himself as only proposing an examination, without any definite action. But that is precisely what President Grant directed. Will Mr Cox tell us, therefore, why he wrote his long letter of petulant reply?

The common council of Louisville, Kentucky, recently passed an ordinance imposing a fine on gentlemen who stare at ladies on the streets. But the mayor vetoed the bill, and in his veto message occurs some delicious reasoning, of which the following will do for a specimen:—

"For my part, I think there is nothing on earth more pleasing than a handsome, well-behaved woman, and the man that cannot appreciate and be grateful for such, ought to be fined; but to fine a man for looking with admiration upon the ladies is something I cannot approve of. If, however, there should be found men so degraded as to behave with vulgarity and rudeness to the ladies on the streets, they can be arrested for disorderly conduct, and will be spurned by every true man. If this ordinance should become a law all our adult male population would be liable to be sent to jail, and I am afraid not a few would have to be fined; while it is even possible that some of your honorable selves might be surprised to find yourselves victims to its sweeping prohibitions."

The Washington Patriot says there is sufficient authority for stating that no other correspondence passed between the President and ex-Secretary Cox in regard to the much discussed California land claim, than that which has already been published.

The Portland correspondent of the Boston Journal, makes the following statement regarding the anti-consolidation case:

The quo warranto writ was filed by Attorney General Reed, early in October by complaint of certain stockholders, Sheriff Perry serving the same. It was returnable at the October term of the Supreme Judicial Court (Oct. 20). The respondents (Maine Central Railroad) filed their answer Nov. 1. The case will not be argued at the January term. It has been agreed between the parties to take it directly to the law term, which will sit in July, 1871, when the case will be argued.

There were many public rejoicings in Missouri over the deliverance of the State from "radical rule"; but the festivities in Chillicothe were peculiar. There was a gathering of the lately disfranchised, most of them "regulars" in the late war, and the command of Sterling Price. They resumed for the occasion the gray dress which they wore so long and 'their cheers and huzzas,' says the correspondent of the St. Louis Republican, "sounded very much like the shouts they used to give when their loved leader rode along the lines." Some national songs were sung, but, according to the same authority, "there were but few, very few, who could join in the songs. The crowd was not a choir for such music."

Mr. Edmund Yates gives the following description of the Marquis of Lorne, who is soon to marry one of Victoria's daughters:

"He looked, so very young, and seemed determined to look so very old; complexion delicate and pink; finely cut and femine features; a slight red mustache, his only facial adornment; genuine Rufus locks, small ears, hands and feet; a light springy step; head high in the air, and a gait which expresses generally a full consciousness of the rights, titles, and belongings of the Dukedom of Argyll—such was the Marquis of Lorne, as he appeared to me from the Speaker's gallery. Let the add that he is widely popular in his own set, and that one hears on all sides that his is a fine nature, and one which will be improved by time, like generous wine."

An official letter has been received in Washington, from a prominent military officer in the west, in which he declares his impression that the Indians will enter upon a general war, on the opening of spring, as they assert they have been badly treated by the army officers in command near their reservations.

A new Democratic daily has been started in Washington, under the style of the Daily Patriot. It's orthodox Democracy is vouched for by the National Democratic Executive Committee, and it is under the editorial management of James E. Harvey, late U. S. Minister to Portugal, who so strongly endorsed the "my policy" course of Andrew Johnson.

The work of consolidation of the revenue collection districts of the country has been steadily progressing since the first of October, and already the Revenue Bureau has reduced the force of regular assistant assessors by 410 officers, and will continue in the same way until about two hundred more assessors shall have been removed.

THE INEFFICIENCY OF OUR SCHOOLS.— In his annual report to Congress, General Schriver, Inspector of the United States Military Academy, says:

"The results of the last examination have with great [illegible] than ever before, directed the attention of the Academic authorities to the utterly superficial system of education [illegible] prevalent throughout the country. [illegible] be either unusual or surprising to find [illegible] rejected at West Point for deficiency in the primary branches of a common school education, possessed of diplomas from [illegible] of learning, attesting their proficiency in many kinds of knowledge, [illegible] the [illegible] elements for admission are [illegible] the capacity of an ordinary pupil [illegible] common schools old enough [illegible] cadet appointment. It is [illegible] a tithe of the vacancies at [illegible] be filled without the one [illegible] for examination provided [illegible]."

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

The N. Y. Free Press has nominated the [illegible] 1872—For President, Hon. [illegible], Columbus, Ohio; for Vice President, Hon. John Quincy Adams, [illegible].

[illegible] of Indianapolis, Ind., has been appointed Receiver of the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago Railroad.

Robert P. Dechert has been nominated by the 1st District Democratic Convention in Pennsylvania for State Senator, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Watt. The election is to take place Dec. 20th.

Hon. Horace White, editor of the Chicago Tribune, which has recently advocated the reorganization of parties, has evidently thought better of it, as we find the following assertion in his speech at the Delmonico Free Trade dinner:

My attachments and sympathies are altogether with the Republican party, and not at all with the Democratic party, and I do not expect ever to belong to the Democratic party.

Sunset Cox on the same occasion declared his indifference to party in advancing the cause of Free Trade, in these words:

I ask you Republicans to read Bolingbroke on Parties, to study the question, and when the line shall be drawn, I ask you to come with us, if we make the issue on Free Trade; and if we do not make it, I will go with you, if you will make it. [Applause.] I believe there is a magnificent, generous element in the Republican party on this question. They no more believe in the right of putting fetters upon labor than in the right of putting fetters upon men.

Manning, Democrat, has 436 majority in the First Congressional District of North Carolina.

Judge Orth of Indiana says he is certain that the English mission has not been offered to him. Although he has seen the President since his arrival, the mission was not alluded to. Judge Orth does not think the approaching session of Congress will be an especially active one.

LETTER FROM STOCKTON.

STOCKTON, Nov. 29, 1870.

To the Editor of the Whig and Courier.

Since the somewhat decline in shipbuilding and commerce, Stockton has been taking a step in the way of manufacturing. In 1867, Messrs. Mudgett, Libbey [illegible] Griffin, J. W. Thompson, Capt. Hez[ekiah] Harriman, and William Griffin, purchased the property known as the Tide Mill [privile]ge, situated at the north end of Cape [Jelliso]n. After constructing a good and [substa]ntial stone and cement dam, they erected a building 100 feet long, by 60 feet wide, [three storie]s and divided into four sections.

The north section was [occupied] by the the Messrs, Mudgett, Libbey [& Gri]ffin, into which they put one single [and a double] [illegible] own saw and edger, also one of Da[niels] Planers; with which ship's beams, deck [plank], knees, &c., can be planed in a man[ner suit]able to be put into a ship without fur[ther lab]or or finish, and with a rapidity near[ly equ]al to that of boards from a board-pl[aner]. They have also one of Knowlton's b[evel]ing scroll saws, with which a log or st[ick of ti]mber can be sawed to any angle or b[evel wi]thout removing it from the table. It is used for the purpose of moulding ship's frames, knees, &c, doing the work of ten or twelve men, and in a manner apparently as easy as a lady would sew a piece of cloth on a sewing machine.

Indeed, the feed and mode of operating are similar to that of the sewing machine, and its work is so perfect—as to obviate a large portion of the adze work on the ship's frames prior to the putting on of the plank. The orders they have had and are receiving for moulded timbers, speak of the efficient and satisfactory manner in which the work is done. There is also in the loft of the same section, a stave, lath and shingle machine, with which all the short and otherwise refuse lumber is worked up.

The next section is owned and occupied by Messrs. Thompson & Griffin, as a planing mill, door, sash and blind factory; where they have put in all the modern improved machinery, such as planes, moulding, mortising and tenoning machines, circulars, &c, together with a very novel attachment (of their own invention, and upon which they have secured letters patent,) to the tenoring machine for dovetailing, and the rapidity and accuracy with which window sash &c, can be dovetailed, is wonderful. I understand they have been filling of late some large cash orders, from Portland and other parts of the State, which indicates that their work is of a quality to be relied upon.

The third section is owned and occupied by Capt. Hezekiah Harriman, (Maine Inspector, and Agent for the American Lloyds Register of Shipping,) as a grist mill and corn store; from which, the Capt. supplies the surrounding inhabitants with corn and meal.

The fourth section is occupied by Wilson Rendell, as a pump and block manufactory, from which the community is supplied with pumps, and the vessels with blocks. Mr. Rendell has been in the business for quite a number of years, and has of late been filling orders for parties in California and South America.

At the time the mill was constructed it was designed to use water power only; but the large and increasing orders of the Messrs. Mudgett, Libbey & Griffin, for ship frames and moulded timbers, being more than they could fill, (the tide power affording them opportunity to operate only something more than half the time), they determined to put in steam power. Accordingly, in the early part of the past summer, a contract was made with the Muzzy Iron Company of your City, for an engine of sixty horse power—for the reception of which they erected a fire proof building (brick with iron roof and doors), the building of which and the setting up of the engine, was under the supervision of engineer Noah Barker, also of your city. The easy and satisfactory manner with which the engine works speaks in terms very creditable to the skill and workmanship of the Messrs. Muzzy. The mill has been operation under steam for about two months, and they are now able to meet all the requirements of their business.

The machinery in the three last named sections, will continue to run by tide-water power as heretofore; the interim between the tides being employed in putting together work that has been previously got out.

Yours, JUSTUS.

A MURDERER ARRESTED.—John Moran who murdered Constable Packard, of Stoughton, Mass., in September last, was arrested Tuesday evening at Stoughton after a severe struggle, and lodged in Dedham jail. He was found secreted in his sister's house, where he had been for some time. Beneath or behind some household articles a trap-door was discovered, which revealed the quarters occupied by the murderer. In attempting to capture the ruffian a struggle ensued and after firing at the officers, Moran again succeeded in escaping, and ran for the woods. The officers followed closely, and brought him down in a swamp, with several pistol shots in his legs.

Be on your Guard.

The unexampled success which for twenty years has accompanied the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters provokes the envy of ignorant nostrum-mongers in all parts of the country, and the counterfeiting business having been measureably played out in consequence of the numerous suits instituted against the offenders, a new system of tactics has been adopted. In the South and West especially, a legion of "Bitters," prepared from worthless materials and bearing a variety of names, have been got up by irresponsible adventurers with the hope of substituting them to some extent for the Standard Tonic of the Age. In some cases country druggists are the concocters and proprietors of these unscientific and trashy compounds, which are warmly recommended by the venders, who endeavor to palm them off upon the credulous in lieu of the great specific which has never yet had a successful competitor either among proprietary preparations or the medicines prescribed in private practice. This notice is intended to put the public on their guard against persuasions of parties engaged in the attempt to substitute mere rubbish for the most efficient stomachic and alterative at present known. At this season of the year, it is of the greatest consequence that no tricks should be played with depressed and enfeebled systems. Ask, therefore, for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the great vegetable invigorant and alterative, and reject, with deserved contempt, the worse than useless medleys offered in its place. It is as important to the public as to the proprietors of the famous restorative, that this advice should be heeded.

LET CONGRESS BE ASKED TO PASS THE following laws by all who love themselves:—If any Spirit shall take possession of any person's body and instigate them to, or themselves use said body, to pollute it either by committing the crime of self pollution, (it being the worshipping of the abomination that maketh desolate, spoken of by the Spirit of the Lord to Daniel the Prophet, 11th Chap, and 31st verse, and 12th Chap. and 11th verse; and by Christ, the Son of God, Matthew 24th chap, and 15th verse), or shall use such body to lie or kill, and by being the worship of the Devil, as Christ said he was a murderer and liar from the beginning. Or shall use such body to commit adultery, or fornication, they being the worship of the Beast, Revelations, 13 Chap. and 1st and 2d verses—to do as beasts do is to worship a beast—or shall do any manner of evil, or shall into fire or stop any man or woman buying or selling because he has not the mark of the Beast Revelations; 13th Chap., 16th and 17th verses. That it shall be perfectly satisfactory for second death or the Son of Man to take away or kill said Spirit if found in the jurisdiction of the United States, and that too without remedy. And no excuse shall be accepted, especially that they did it to give employment to Priests at the Confessional, or to Lawyers at the bar, or to enslave any one. Or if any such Spirit shall make any one sick, or cause accidents to give any one employment to so-called doctors, second death may take him, or kill it away, and that too without remedy; or the Son of Man the same. And further, in view of the war now raging in Europe, caused by the crimes of those who have passed unpunished, I would farther ask that Truth be declared the God of the land, and the worship of Truth be inaugurated, by all telling the Truth at all times, or keeping silent. And for all that are coming to the Spirit World to come prepared for the battle, Revelations 18th Chap. and 14th verse, and Revelations 19 Chap. and 19 verse. You each for yourselves will find full instructions, Matthew 5th Chap., and 23d, 24th and 25th verses, how to prepare. ONE.

TELEGRAPHIC TO THE Whig & Courier.

LATEST FROM EUROPE

THE DEFEAT OF THE ARMY OF THE NORTH.

A Great Battle Reported Near Paris.

The Prussians Evacuate Amiens to Reinforce the Main Army.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR A CONFERENCE.

Predictions of the Close of the War.

THE BRITISH CABINET QUARREL.

Probable Dissolution of the Ministry.

A Successful Sortie From Paris.

THE ARMY OF THE NORTH RETREATING.

Brussels, Nov. 30. The French army in the north has abandoned the project of joining the army of the Loire, and is retiring on Lille.

A GREAT BATTLE RAGING NEAR PARIS.

London, 30—midnight. The London Times correspondent telegraphs that last night's cannonade against the Germans on the south and west of Paris was a feint, to distract attention from a sortie on the Saxons and Wurtembergers. A terrible battle has been going on since noon, and was still raging at six o'clock.

A PARIS BALLOON ADRIFT.

London, Dec. 1.—7 a. m. A balloon probably from Paris, was seen late last evening, over the English Channel. It seemed to be trying to make a landing on one of the Scilly Islands, but a violent east wind prevailed at the time, and it was carried out to sea. Unquestionably it was lost in the Atlantic.

THE PRUSSIAN TERMS.

The Times Versailles dispatch this morning says that the acceptance of the Prussian conditions of peace by the Paris branch of the general government, will be required before the capitulation of the city will be received. About one third of the town of Thionville was destroyed by fire during the bombardment by the Prussians.

The army of the Loire is retreating, its present position and numbers are unknown.

A PRUSSIAN DEFEAT.

Advices have been received here, of a battle between the French under Briand, and the Prussians at Etrepagny, in which the Prussians were beaten with severe loss. The French captured three officers and a number of cannon, and horses, as well as a quantity of small arms.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR A CONFERENCE.

The Times this morning has a special telegram from Versailles, announcing that negotiations for a conference are progressing.

THE WAR DRAWING TO A CLOSE.

London, Dec. 1. The Telegraph this morning says the feeling is becoming universal throughout England that the French war is rapidly drawing to a close. It is believed that the apparent impossibility of combining and concentrating the French armies will soon compel the surrender of Trochu. Prominent members of the Ministry are urging the immediate calling of a convention to settle the Russian question and arrange and adopt a peace policy for Prussia and France.

It is reported that

was not only wounded, but taken prisoner.

THE BRITISH CABINET CRISIS—PROBABLE DISSOLUTION OF THE MINISTRY.

Special to Evening Telegram.

London, Dec. 1. The Cabinet complications thicken upon us and a dissolution of the Ministry is inevitable. The expectation that it would keep together until Parliament assembled weakens every hour and the resignation of several prominent members will probably be announced to-day. Granville remains immovable in his determination as to the basis of a Congress, and Gortschakoff's note will not admit of this concession. Great anxiety exists among the governing classes. The Times suggests an immediate summoning of Parliament.

AMIENS EVACUATED BY THE PRUSSIANS—THEY RETIRE TOWARDS PARIS.

It is reported that the Prussians have suddenly evacuated Amiens, retreating towards Paris. This movement is regarded at Lille as very significant. In that city it is believed that a great battle is progressing around Paris to-day.

The Paris Moniteur chronicles six military executions in its last number.

FRENCH SUCCESSES.

London, Dec. 1—noon. The French claim to have won the victory at Beaune la Rolande, a little village in the department of Loiret. The victors, the French say, were young conscripts, under fire for the first time. They were gallant and steady.

The French forces have recovered within the past few days the following places: Nogent, Bessie, La Barnard and St. Calais, in the department of Sarthe; Montoire and Mondoubleau, in the department of Cher and Montargis, in the department of Loiret.

THE FRENCH RETREAT.

Brussels, Dec. 1. The Independence Belge to-day, referring to the orderly retreat of the French towards Arras, says they will doubtless occupy the great quadrilateral formed by the fortresses of the north, and is impregnable.

RAISING FUNDS.

An engagement occurred at Goouley yesterday, between a body of Franc Tireurs from the department of eastern Pyrnees, and a Prussian column well supplied with artillery. London, Dec. 1. The World's correspondent at Tours telegraphed on the 30th ult., that all was well with the army of the Loire, and that the Prussian dispatches concerning fighting on the 28th were wholly fallacious. Gen. de Aurelles holds well in hand in the immediate vicinity of Orleans the 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th army corps, in all 130,000 men. The right rear is formed of the 18th and 20th corps, of which Bourbaki now accepts the command, and is 67,000 strong. The whole of these forces concentrated during the recent fighting and inflicted on the enemy a greater loss than they themselves suffered. There is perfect confidence in the ability of de Aurelles to pierce the enemy's centre and defeat his wings in detail.

The government has ordered the immediate construction of 11 entrenched camps at St. Ower, Cherbourg, La Rochelle and Pas Des Lanciers, for 250,000 men, and at Canshe, Nevers, Brandeaux, Charmont, Ferrard, Toulon, Montpellier and Lyons, for 60,000 men each.

Owing to the lateness of the hour we are unable to give the programme, and can only say that every piece was rendered in a style evincing talent and cultivation. This concert, as well as the other entertainments of a like character given the [illegible], demonstrates what we have often said—that our citizens are not dependent on out of town parties for first-class music, either vocal or instrumental, and we are glad to see that our home talent is receiving more and more encouragement, as these occasions. In both cases Judge Barrows refused to grant the injunction.

THE HALLOWELL MURDER TRIAL.

Twelve witnesses for the prosecution were examined Wednesday. Two more, the wives of the deceased and the prisoner, were objected to by the defence. Mrs. Ladlin was not allowed to testify because what she knew about the carpet and the arrangement to put it down that evening was objected to by the defendant's counsel as irrelevant and excluded. The testimony of Howell's wife was rightly offered because the wife may testify with the husband's permission. The prisoner's counsel declined to give that permission and therefore Mrs. Howell was not allowed to testify. She bore a frightful scar running from her neck on the right side of her face; during her [illegible] to the prisoner she [illegible] and from the witness stand giving him a spiteful look as she passed. The next testimony was that of the physician who gave the condition and appearance of the wounds inflicted on Ladlin's neck and those received by Mrs. Howell in the cheek and upon her eye at her husband's hands. Dr. Brickett testified to spots of blood in Mrs. Howell's bed room upon the floor and upon the door on the inside as high as a man's head, which would go to show that the assault was committed there. The bloody clothing of Ladlin was put into the case as part of it, and the government then announced that they would rest the case here.

THURSDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

Augusta, Dec. 1, 1870.

The case on the part of the defence was commenced this morning. Mr. Libbey made the opening argument in behalf of prisoner, occupying about two hours. He said that Ladlin was guilty of adultery with Howell's wife, and admitted that Ladlin was killed by the prisoner. He also said that the defence would prove that Ladlin and Mrs. Howell were in bed together on the night of the tragedy—Howell was under the bed all the time, but before any improper act had been committed he sprang from his hiding place and committed the murder. He claimed that it was justifiable homicide. The evidence was put in to show that Ladlin was on terms of [illegible] intercourse with Mrs. Howell and [illegible] the habit of visiting her [illegible].

BUSINESS ITEMS.

A GREAT MAN.—Dr. Helmbold is a great man. His Buchu is known to all the board fences, and broken constitutions the country through. He has recently taken a tour. His six blooded horses are said to be of the Patchen stock, and quite equal to those owned by the great chief magistrate of our nation. His recent tour, according to that connoisseur of such affairs, the Home Journal, was similar to a royal progress such as were once made by the kings and queens of England. From the virtuous village of New York, with that matchless six-in-hand establishment, he came like a conqueror to his native city of Philadelphia. Here, overwhelmed with ovations, he remained a whole week at the La Pierre. Not a few of the most distinguished citizens begged the honor of taking him by the hand—that hand that has so often driven the six Patchens, and first compounded the immortal Buchu in immortal perfection. The High School, which needs no other praise than that it numbers such a man among its alumni, gave him a most affecting welcome. It was a touching sight. Nothing overcomes even a High School like distinguished greatness. Nor was the press of the city invulnerable to his absolute merits. Perhaps it is not generally known that the Sunday Dispatch, the Sunday Mercury, the Evening Bulletin, the Telegraph, and the Press have each the honor and the lasting renown of having daily at work upon their columns men who were classmates of Dr. Helmbold. What higher commendation could be awarded the journalistic ability of the city of the world renowned Wm. Penn. There is a little difference in the style of Philadelphia's three great men—if New York will allow us to claim the last of the triad—Penn, Franklin and Helmbold. Of how much are these three names significant! Peace, lightning and Buchu!

From Philadelphia the feted Doctor went with his magnificent stud, splendidly caparisoned to Baltimore at the urgent request of his excellency the Governor of Maryland. The blooded steeds were universally admired. Ovation followed ovation. The monumental city was overpowered by the distinguished honor thus enterprisingly thrust upon it. The entire turn-out of this great American, filled it with a superb sense of the sublimity of the stars and stripes amid which we dwelt.

From Baltimore to Washington the costly equipage moved. Here greatness met greatness. The peers of the land looked up, and took off their hats. Here too the representatives of the press ate of the bounty provided by Dr. Helmbold. Such a galaxy of talent, such a flow of soul and other things, such a scintilla of wit, as was seen around that jovial board, no pen in this age will venture to portray. Posterity alone can do justice to the theme.

After an absence of three weeks this great man is, we write it with pathetic pen, home again. A distinguished contemporary assures us that "President Grant seems to have known Dr. Helmbold by instinct." That he received the Doctor in the presence of not less than five hundred people, was a special compliment! Great men, it is said, easily read each other.

It is with more than ordinary emotions that we close this unworthy tribute. We cannot do it in our own words. We quote lest we break down: "With the names of George Law, Commodore Vanderbilt, A. T. Stewart and Wm. B. Astor, the name of Dr. Helmbold is indissolubly cemented. In many respects he is greater than them all." Let America recognize her great man! Let his life be studied in all our Sunday Schools.—[Germantown Daily Chronicle.

THE CENTRAL RAILROAD, OF IOWA,

CONNECTING ST. LOUIS AND ST. PAUL.

Now Nearly Completed.

This road is built by a Company of strong capitalists, who have pushed their work forward at a rapid rate.

ONE MILLION OF THE

First Mortgage

7 Per Cent. Gold Bonds of the Company remain, which are offered at the very low rate of 90 and Accrued Interest.

Among their advantages are—

1st. The road is nearly finished, and the cars are expected to run across the State in 60 days.

2d. The road has been built only of the best material, the iron having been manufactured expressly for it, at a much higher cost than that usually paid.

3d. It runs through a most superb agricultural country.

4th. It has great advantages in carrying coal North and bringing lumber South.

5th. The Mortgage is only $16,000 per mile, while many other roads are bonded to double this amount.

6th. The road is principally owned by bankers and other capitalists, who have invested a large amount in its construction, and who have every reason to take care of its obligations.

7th. A first Mortgage for so small an amount, upon a road so near completion, and in such strong hands, may well be considered a perfectly safe security.

We believe there will be no more favorable time to sell Governments, and buy really First-class Railroad securities—such as these—than the present. With any further decline in Gold, Governments must decline also.

Subscriptions will be received in Bangor by

of whom pamphlets and full information may be had.

LOVER YOUNG'S DREAM.—A D. 1870

BY GEORGE A. SPARKS, JR.

"Thank you—much obliged, I'm
Yes, it's so; report says true
I'm engaged to Nell Tyndale—
What else could a fellow do?
Governor was getting in a rage—
Asked me with pat reproach,—
When I meant to go to war,
Take a wife and set to work
Stormed at my extravagance,
Talked of cutting off supplies—
Fairly hulled me, you know, at
Sort of thing that I despise.
Then he paused, and sip his wine,
And remark, he'd never seen
Any girl that pleased him more
Than that younger Miss Latine—
Well, you know, I lost no time
At the races—Governor raged,—
So, to sort of smooth him down
I went off and got engaged—
Sort of pale-pleading for mercy—
All arranged with old Latine—

How to [illegible] Winter—We mean a [illegible] build a good fire. When it [illegible] mowhat, so that there is a [illegible] said more wood, and let it [illegible] few small sticks. Get this [illegible] let it burn for a few minutes [illegible] your room is pretty well [illegible] stove with a good draft is [illegible] Your room is not yet [illegible] negligence of the ventilation going on. Not only that, the air which is drawn up by the stove is cold; and cools the stove, thus preventing it from heating with hot air. Thus there is a current, not only in the room but in the stove which "draws up the heat," as it is said, and truly. This, in a great measure, accounts for the tardiness of warming a room in the morning. The ventilation is not good especially for an invalid.

But close up the stove and in a short time this will be remedied. There is heat enough now to retain fire. There will be the radiation of the coals and a thin diffused flame, while most of all the air in the stove will be, not as it was before, cool, as it rushes through but hot, heating the stove, pipe and all, till up to the damper. The stove now throws the heat into the room rapidly without creating a current. That is the secret of the thing—no current and a hot stove.

We were led to these facts more particularly by a stove-pipe in the front apartment of our buildings, which we found warmed to a greater space sooner than the stove in the room we occupied. At first we could not account for it. Why a stove-pipe should warm a room and a larger one at that, sooner than both a stove and a pipe, was beyond our comprehension. By careful noting we found that the pipe in the other room throw out the heat without getting up a current—without drawing off the warm air in immediate contact with it and fetching in, from without, the cold air to fill the vacuum. It was simply a process of heating. In the other room it was ventilation.

A good bed of coals, with a few large dry sticks partly burned, and the stove shut tight, is the best way of heating a room. It is also lasting; besides, it is a saving of wood. In order to heat a room quickly with a stove—say in the morning—the draft, or front part of the stove, be outside the room. But still the stove would not be so hot as when filled with confined hot air, in addition to the radiating heat. The best way is to close your stove on going to bed with a (dry) stick in it, laid on a bed of live coals. If your stove is tie-tight—with just sufficient draught to take off the smoke—you will have a bed of coals in the morning, and a warm stove. Now fill with wood, small sticks below, large on top—Let it blaze a few minutes, then close the draught. In a few minutes more your room will begin to feel comfortable, though there seems to be a dead stove! For ventilation, let it burn longer than before the damper is turned, with less wood. The ventilation and warming may thus be done at any time by a turn of the damper.

Another advantage is, to have the fire in one end of the stove, towards the place where you most are; thus throwing the heat upon you. Each housekeeper should have a pan of chips or small wood to feed the fire when needed. Distribute a few small sticks among the pile, or better, throw a handful of chips upon it. This will start up the fire at once.

But few know the advantage of seasoned wood—fewer still of thoroughly seasoned wood. It would pay to make a kiln dry to dry your wood. If you do not believe this, try a piece of wood that has been near a stove or in some other hot place for a long time. It will at once take fire, and burn like inflammable gas. There's a hot white light that will do the business at once. Above all things avoid green wood. Burn it not, suffer, throw it out go from home, rather than be neglected. But do a good deal to get dry wood! Do more to get hickory, but most of all, exert yourself to get thoroughly dried, not "seasoned," wood. What should be the text of every housewife, first and foremost—dry hard wood. Avoid all snappish wood, as it is sure to make the cook snappish.—Exchange.

HINTS TO FARMERS. Now that winter is approaching, it would perhaps be as well to discontinue haying, and turn your attention to getting in your saw-logs. No farmer can consider his fall work completed until he has his collar well filled with saw-logs. Seated around the blazing hearth of a winter's night there is no fruit more delicious.

A correspondent asks his what we think, of late plowing. Plowing should not be continued later than ten or eleven o'clock at night. It gets the horse in the habit of staying out late and unduly exposes the plow. We have known plows to acquire springhalt and inflammatory rheumatism from late plowing. Don't do it.

To another correspondent who wants us to suggest a good drain on a farm, we would say a heavy mortgage at ten per cent. will drift it about as rapidly as anything we know of.

When you make cider, select nothing but the soundest turnips, chopping them into steel length before cradling them. In boiling your cider take plenty of ice, and when boiled hang it up in the sun to dry.

A pick-ax should never be used in picking apples! It has a tendency to break down the vines and damage the hive.

In sawing your winter apple jack a horse rake will be found preferable to a step-ladder. Step-ladders are liable to freeze up, and are hardly palatable unless boiled with sugar.

In cutting down hemlock trees for canning select only the largest. Don't throw away the chips, as they make fine parlor ornaments encased in rustic frames of salt and vinegar.

The coming cold weather should suggest to the humane farmer the necessity for a good cow shed. The following is a receipt for making a good cow shed:—Pour a pailful of boiling hot water on her back, and if that don't make a good cow shed—her hair—we are no prophet to anybody.

Now is the time for planting your winter hay. The pink-eyed Southdown is probably the best variety, as it don't need pulling and begins to lay early.—Ex.

A STRANGE AFRICAN STORY. The Secretary of the Interior has been called upon to decide upon the authority given him by the laws of Congress in regard to the return to Africa of negroes recaptured from slavers by the United States. In a case where facts are stranger than fiction. In 1859 the Wanderer, a slave-trading vessel, was captured by a United States war-vessel cruising among the West Indies. The cargo of captives was found to be in a horrible condition, and on that account the commander of the cruiser took the Wanderer to Savannah, instead of waiting to make a northern port. While lying there the slaver was boarded by a desperate gang, by whom the captives were retaken and scattered immediately through the South so that they could not be found again by the Government. Since the war a part of this company of negroes has gathered at Mobile, formed a society by themselves, preserving their native language and living apart from the freedmen about them. They are said to be industrious and thrifty. They desire to be sent back to their native country, but Secretary Cox, before whom the question first came, did not see his way clear to provide for their return, under a law that never contemplated such a case, and Secretary Delano is embarrassed in the same way. The circumstances appeal to Congress, if the law as it stands is insufficient. The little band is of a tribe called Yorenhans. Rev. A. D. Phillips, a returned missionary to Africa, in addressing a congregation of colored people at Mobile two years ago, happened to recite the Lord's Prayer in Yorenhan, in the hearing of some of this company, who, hearing their native tongue, came around him and made known the circumstances of their capture and subsequent history. It seems they were traders of influence, and high position in Yoruba.—They were captured by Dohomeys and placed on the Wanderer, near Porto Novo. It is also represented that many other freedom-dolls are to be returned to Africa.

MARK TWAIN AS AN INTERVIEWER.—Mark Twain thinks a remarkable feature of the present European war is the extraordinary candor of the prominent persons who have been engaged in it. From Bismarck to Napoleon, from Bazaine to William, the dignitaries have manifested a miraculous alacrity in the frank avowal of their intentions, plans, and projects, and have seemed happiest when making a clean breast of it to some newspaper correspondent. As a fair illustration of their amiable candor he prints the following condensed, he says, from the New York Herald correspondent's recent interview with Napoleon:

As I was ushered into the reception room at Wilhelmshohe the Emperor arose (from a "luxurious fauteuil," of course,) and advanced to welcome me, with extended hand and an air of extreme gratification that put me perfectly at ease.

"Dying Zboo?" Sire, said I, giving his hand a cordial shake. With the exquisite tact of a practical courtier, his Majesty seized the occasion to pay me (and by me my countrymen) one of his neatest compliments. "He said (Perhaps we had better conduct our conversation in English. The fact is, you speak French with an accent that really shames us Parisians! I've often remarked this trait in accomplished Americans, and wondered at it." The Emperor's remark was so unexpectedly flattering that it took my breath away for a moment, but, under cover of a profound bow, I recovered my fluency, and observed "Such a compliment from your Majesty, in happier days, would have brought the entire American nobility to your feet." My indirect allusion to his misfortunes affected his Majesty profoundly. The tears that chased each other silently down his majestic and imperial nose and dripped in imperial sorrow from the waxed ends of his moustache, might have moved a heart of stone, with a little assistance. Surely, thought I, the Emperor who can thus weep at his own calamities cannot be utterly heartless.

When the Emperor had recovered his composure, and had his nose blowed by the proper officer, I opened the conversation in a way that I thought least likely to offend his delicacy. I told him that it was currently reported that he had feathered his nest pretty well while Emperor, and I should take it as a special favor if he would tell me how much he had really stolen. In America, I told him public men were expected to lay by some thing for a rainy day, and it would rather enhance our respect for him to be assured that he had exercised a like justifiable prudence. He replied, "My friend I respect the Herald too much to deceive it. I have made a nice thing on the whole, and my chamberlain shall provide you with an inventory of all that I have goblged." I asked him if he own ed any property in New York. "Well," said he, "I thought I owned the New York World a few months ago, but since the Sedan affair it has gone back on me." "Your Majesty was accused of treachery at Sedan. Was you really a traitor?" "Frankly, I said he "I think if I had tried I might have died at the head of my army, instead of surrendering. If this be treason, make the most of it!"

I by engaging freedom with which His Majesty unbosomed himself, emboldened me to pursue my inquiries, and our conversation became almost confidential. I asked him if he was ever jealous. He replied "Not as [illegible] ess, but as Mrs Napoleon I have sometimes thought she was inclined to be a little strict with me." I said, "Can you lay your hand on your heart, sire and swear to the Herald that you never gave her cause for jealousy?" The Emperor (musing) "You may be right." At this point the Emperor seemed a good deal cut up, and I felt profoundly. Instead of answering my question explicitly, I was sorry to see him put his hands in his pockets instead of on his wife.

I [illegible] him he might deem me rather inquisitive, if he knew how deeply interested we Americans were in such a scandal, I was sure he would gladly tell me about the Bellanger [illegible] referred to in his private correspondence in which was discovered at the Tuileries after the flight of the Empress. He said, "My friend, I am deeply touched by your friendly solicitude about my affairs. Your curiosity is tempered with an exquisite delicacy that disarms it of any power to offend. That correspondence, I grieve to confess—" The announcement of a messenger from Berlin unhappily interrupted the Emperor's remarks at this point. Intended to have gradually drawn Napoleon to speak about private and personal topics, and should have succeeded but for that interruption.

A NOVEL INTERPRETATION OF THE CODE OF HONOR.—An evening or so ago an amusing affair happened at a fashionable party, which for the time being threatened to eventuate in bloodshed. A fiery youth, Mr S——, whose father owns a half-interest in a Fourth street clothing house, escorted a charming young lady to the party in question, where she was introduced to Mr W——, a well known lawyer and together they whirled in the voluptuous waltz. Mr S——, who, by the way is of an exceedingly jealous disposition, regarded this innocent flirtation as a mortal insult, and took an early occasion to inform the disciple of Blackstone that the satisfaction usually accorded to gentlemen could alone atone for the affront. The lawyer handed his card to the young clothier and passed on. Meantime, anticipating trouble, he called upon a clerk in the court-house to act as his next friend, and nervously awaited the missive which should summon him to the field of mortal strife. Two days passed away, but no challenge came, and the tall admirer of the Graces began to fear that further "upon insight he was told to him as a well" bred budd, called upon Mr S—— and demanded an explanation. Instead of the affair S—— asked what we upon had [illegible] and when full mind that the "terms were" told at ten paces, and "pistols" demanded "thirty paces" for "practice." Such a proposition could not, for a moment, of course, be entertained by the young tailor, there up the longest mail an ample apology, and all lives to tell the tale over winter clothing at his father's store.—[St. Louis Times.

INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION?

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the Insane asylums and the melancholy deaths by consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion.

The Constitution, once affected by organic weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU invariably does. A trial will convince the most sceptical.

of the worst disorders that inflict mankind arise from the corruption than accumulates in the Blood. Of all the discoveries that have been made to purge it out none can equal in effect HELMBOLD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA. It cleanses and renovates the Blood, instills the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors which make disease. It stimulates the healthy functions of the body, and expels the disorders that grow and ripen in the blood. Such a remedy that could be relied on has long been sought, and now the public have one on which they can depend. Our space here does not admit of certificates to show its effects but the trial of a single bottle will show to the sick that it has its virtues surpassing anything they have ever taken.

Two tablespoonfuls of the Extract of Sarsaparilla added to a pint of water is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is fully equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla or Decoction as usually made.

Helmbold's Rose Wash,

An excellent Lotion for diseases arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the Extracts Buchu and Sarsaparilla, in such diseases as recommended. Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character will accompany the medicines. Also explicit directions for use, with hundreds of thousands testimonials. Receipts and upwards of 20,000 medical certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, &c. The Proprietor has not resorted to the publication in the newspapers, he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

The Science of Medicine, like the Doric Column should stand simple, pure, majestic, having fact for its basis, Induction for its pillar and Truth alone for its Capital.

L

My Extract Sarsaparilla is a Blood Purifier, my Extract Buchu is a Diuretic, and will not do such in all cases.

Both are prepared on purely scientific principles—are concentrated—and are the most active remedies of other that can be made. A ready and conclusive test will be a comparison of their properties with those set forth in the following works:
